Summary

{Przyczynki do projektu wielkiego słownika polskiego} ('Towards the great dictionary of Polish') is the first comprehensive work of a methodological character in the field of Polish lexicography. It is also a work which is far ahead of its times. Karłowicz – a broad-minded scholar – outlines his attitude towards lexicographic tradition in a clear and straightforward way, and provides a detailed description of the content and structure of the dictionary entry in connection with the function of the dictionary. Such great dictionary, without any normative elements, was intended to help other specialists in the field to prepare a smaller work, more prescriptive in character, intended for a general audience.
